Strenuous Training for the Race.

SPEEDS KEPT SECRET.

Rugby, Yesterday. Britain's Schneider Trophy Team of seven pilots, now assembled at Felixstowe under the command of Squadron Leader Orlebar, have gone into strict training for the contest, which will take place over the Solent in September. The teams representing France and Italy will challenge Britain on this occasion and are making secret preparations for the race. If Britain wins she will retain the Trophy, having won it in 1927 and defended it successfully in the 1929 contest.

The team chosen for the race has had wide experience in high speed aircraft flying. Squadron Leader Orlebar holds the world's speed record of about 350 miles per hour and, although no members of the team actually participated in the 1929 race, four were trained in readiness for that contest and all are trained high speed pilots.

The members of the team are about 30 years old except Flying Officer Leach, who is only 22 years old. Other members of the team are: Flight Lieutenant Stanforth, who was formerly an Officer in the Regular Army and was a reserve pilot in 1929; Flight Lieutenant Hope and Long, both of whom have been stationed at Felixstowe for some time and had opportunity of flying high speed machines; Lieutenant Brinton, who is the first member of the Fleet Air Arm to be a member of the racing team; Flight Lieutenant Boothman, who has been carrying out special high speed research work on the 1929 Schneider machines during the past year, and Flying Officer Smith, who went to Felixstowe as a Seaplane Test Pilot, where he has had wide high speed experience.

During the training at Felixstowe, to be followed in about two months' time by a special course at Calshot on Southampton Water, the team will at first fly "Fairly Flycatchers" and "Fairly Fly" machines, which have a speed of over 200 miles per hour, and which will also be used in the preliminary stages. The other machines that will be available will be a "Supermarine Napier Five," which won the 1927 race, a "Gloster Napier Four" and a "Supermarine Rolls-Royce Six" machine, which has been modified since the 1929 race was won with one of them.

Secrecy is observed regarding the two other machines, which are now under construction. The speeds of which these machines are capable are also kept secret, but the possibility of about 400 miles per hour being reached "on the flat" is confidently discussed. The last Schneider Race raised the speed for the race from 201 to 329 miles per hour, and Squadron Leader Orlebar's world record raised the flat speed of the previous record from 319 miles to 350 miles per hour. — British Wireless Service.

RAMBLING EXCUSES.

Lance-Sergeant Stedman, of the Water Police, this morning charged three Chinese women before the Hon. Comdr. G. F. Hole, R.N. (retired), with boarding the J.C.J.L. s.s. Tijobadas without the permission of the master or officer in charge. They all pleaded "guilty."

Asked by the Magistrate what they were doing on board, the first woman said that she went there to see the No. 2 cook. Second accused said that she was merely accompanying No. 3 and did not know the latter's business. No. 3 said that she went to see another Chinese member of the crew.

Sub-Inspector Munro said that, at the Water Police Station, No. 2 said that she went to see a relative who was a stoker on board, but was unable to give his name.

All three accused claimed, to the Police that they were married women and appeared on the charge sheet as such, and all gave different addresses in Yau-mat.

His Worship imposed fines of $10 each, or one week's hard labour in default.

Her skull was fractured and she died instantaneously.

Mr. Balfour was severely injured and sent to hospital. — Reuter.

To Fly Back to Britain by Plane.

OWN MACHINE SOLD.

Rugby, Yesterday. On the Prince of Wales's return journey from his South American tour he will visit the King and Queen of Spain in Madrid. According to present plans he will disembark from the liner Arlanza in Lisbon and complete the journey to Britain by air.

When he started from Britain in January he flew to Paris in his own machine, which was afterwards returned to the De Havilland Company to be sold. The "Puss Moth," which he will use in his flight from Lisbon, is a new plane which he bought before leaving home for use in South America, and which will accompany him across the Atlantic on the Arlanza. — British Wireless Service.

Rugby, Yesterday. It was officially stated at Windsor Castle to-day that the improvement in the King's condition is maintained. He signed a number of State documents and transacted official business in his room. It is emphasised in authoritative circles that rapid recovery is not to be looked for.

The British Medical Journal to-day emphasises the fact that recovery from sub-acute-bronchitis, such as the King has been suffering from, must take time, especially when occurring at the end of the Winter. — British Wireless Service.

COAL-OIL TO TAKE PLACE OF PETROL?

Discovery of Importance to Oil Industry.

ANTI-KNOCKING SPIRIT.

Rugby, Yesterday. The recent announcement of the formation of an International Company holding the patents and interests of several leading companies in Hydro-generation processes for producing oil from coal, gives point to the references to the technical progress in these processes made by Sir Harry McGowan, as Chairman, at the annual meeting of the Imperial Chemical Industries, Limited, which is one of the companies concerned.

He stated that research had led to striking developments, produced with no appreciable loss to the petrol, having anti-knocking qualities equal to the finest grades now on the market. The pooling of the resources of the leading world groups is bound to be of great commercial importance in future years. — British Wireless Service.

"We are striking a match that will set Australia ablaze," declared Mr. Lyons on his arrival here to inaugurate a whirlwind campaign against the Government's finance inflation proposals. Strong bodies of moderate opinion have already rallied in support of the campaign. Mr. Lyons was tumultuously received, flowers being rained on his car. — Reuter.

NEW AIR FORCE.

BOMBING PLANES LEAVE FOR IRAQ.

BRITISH UNIFORMS.

London, Yesterday. An air force was born yesterday.

Painted white with national markings, green, white, red and black, five Gipsy-Moth biplanes, followed by a Puss-Moth monoplane from the Hatfield aerodrome left for Paris en route to Iraq.

The monoplane is piloted by a member of the British Air Force, Flight Lieutenant Carter, who has been lent to the Iraq Government for three years.

The five biplanes are piloted by Iraqi officers who have undergone Royal Air Force training in England. They speak English fluently, and are attired in khaki uniforms of the British Army pattern with the cap formerly worn by the British Flying Corps.

The Puss-Moth is for King Feisal's personal use. The Gipsy-Moths are fitted with bomb-racks, cameras and wireless and form the nucleus of an Iraqi air force. — Reuter.

TOLL OF STORM.

FATE OF JAPANESE FISHERMEN OFF KOREA COAST.

VESSELS CAPSIZED.

Tokyo, Yesterday. A message from Seoul states that 125 fishermen were drowned off the south-west coast of Korea on Tuesday night owing to storms, which capsized over 100 fishing vessels. — Reuter.

RINGS THAT MATCH.

Unlike its recent predecessors, 1931 promises nothing new in the way of wedding rings. A diamond "eternity" ring is as frequent as the simple gold ring, and most of the new rings have square edges. Some of the wedding rings are chased, whether they are of gold or platinum, and the vogue is to have the wedding ring to match the setting of the engagement ring; this uniformity is gained, which is entirely in accord with feminine taste at the moment.

SMALL BLAZE IN THE G.C.H.

Excitement Among the Patients.

QUICKLY SUPPRESSED.

There was some excitement in the Government Civil Hospital this morning when a fire broke out, soon after 10 o'clock, in a section of the "B" block of buildings. The alarm was sent out early and the engine from the Kennedy Town Sub-Station turned out promptly. The flames were tackled before they had time to spread, and within a short time they were extinguished without causing much damage. The cause of the outbreak is supposed to be the fusing of some electric wires.

When the alarm was sent through to the Central Fire Station, two engines were sent out from there, but found upon arrival that their services were not required.

JAPANESE PREMIER MAY RESIGN.

Mr. Wakatsuki Likely To Be Successor.

DECISION AWAITED.

Tokyo, Yesterday. Owing to Mr. Hamaguchi's weakened condition, following his operation on the 5th inst., the belief is growing that his resignation of the premiership is merely a question of time. It is likely that his successor will be either the ex-Premier, Mr. Wakatsuki, who headed the Japanese delegation to the London Naval Conference last year, or the octogenarian former member of the Cabinet, Baron Yamamoto.

The possibility of a Seiyukai (opposition) Ministry replacing the present Minseito Cabinet is practically nil, although the prestige of the Government has been shaken by the failure to obtain the passage of certain Bills at the recent session of the Diet, and also by the revelation that the revenues for the past fiscal year were over-estimated by 128,000,000 yen, leaving a deficit of 48,000,000 yen.

Other possibilities for the Premiership are the Foreign Minister, Baron Shidehara; the War Minister, General Ugaki; the Home Minister, Mr. Adachi; and the Railway Minister, Mr. Egi.

Approach to Full Recovery. The latest medical examination of Mr. Hamaguchi continues to uphold the hope that he will be able to leave hospital about April 20, but it is intimated that it will probably be a further month or six weeks before he will have recovered sufficiently to walk about.

Another Operation.

Tokyo, Later.

Owing to the Premier's condition becoming worse, a further operation was carried out late to-night, when five grammes of pus were removed. It is understood that the operation was not serious, and proved satisfactory.

It was reported that the Premier had resigned to-night, but there is no foundation for this rumour.

Cabinet to Resign? It was later widely rumoured that the Minseito Government leaders have decided on the resignation of the Cabinet as soon as a successor to Mr. Hamaguchi is selected.

It is expected that Mr. Wakatsuki will be chosen. It is probable the resignation will occur within the immediate future. — Reuter.

AVIATOR CRASHES.

"DROPPED LIKE A STONE."

Tokyo, Yesterday. While flying at the height of 3,000 metres an aeroplane piloted by the civil aviator, Mr. Ito, developed engine trouble and dropped like a stone near Tachikawa, where it crashed, and was completely wrecked.

Leaping clear from the falling plane in a parachute, from a height of 4,800 metres, the aviator landed safely after drifting 17 minutes. — Reuter.

REGISTERED LETTER MISSING.

Allegations Against a European.

SUM OF $300 INVOLVED.

Remanded from Monday, the Hungarian, Harry Simon, described as a pilot, made his appearance before Mr. E. H. Williams in the Central Second Police Court this morning, charged, as follows:—

(a) Attempted larceny, on March 23, of a letter, addressed to Mr. A. W. Summers, of the L. E. Gale Company, which contained a cheque for $300.

(b) Unlawful possession, on April 4, of an automatic pistol, an automatic pistol magazine, and 7 rounds of ammunition without a permit.

Detective-Inspector W. Shannon said that on January 20, defendant was in Shanghai, where he made the acquaintance of Mr. E. L. Curtis, an air pilot. They were on rather friendly terms, and defendant frequently visited Mr. Curtis in his room in the Y.M.C.A. About February 13, defendant left Shanghai, and came to Hong Kong, and Mr. Curtis (of the L. E. Gale Company at Shanghai) came later. Defendant made the acquaintance of the L. E. Gale Company here, their office being on the fifth floor of Union Building.

To get to the incident of the letter, Inspector Shannon said that it was necessary to go back to March 18. On that day Mr. A. W. Summers, manager of the Gale Office here, wired to the Shanghai office for an advance of $300, as the local office was short of funds. A wire was received the next day that the cheque had been mailed on March 19.

On March 23, Mr. Summers went to Canton with Mr. Curtis, and on that day the assistant in the Hong Kong office received a registered letter from Shanghai, and, enclosing it with another letter addressed to Mr. Curtis, put both into a plain envelope, addressed to Mr. Summers, c/o Victoria Hotel, Shamoon. Mr. Summers returned from Canton on March 26, and stated that he had not received the letter. He questioned the office assistant, and he naturally thought that it might have been "hung up" at the Chinese Post Office.

Mr. Summers waited for a while, and on April 1, he went to the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank to make enquiries, and was then informed that a cheque for L. E. Gale Company had already been cashed at the Kowloon branch office on March 26. The cheque was signed by A. W. Summers, but it was not Mr. Summers's signature. The only recollection of a bank assistant was that the cheque was cashed by a foreigner and not by a Chinese.

The finding of the cheque led to Mr. Summers carrying out enquiries in his office. On his return, his office boy alleged that defendant, on March 23, went down with him in the lift, and on passing the second floor, he further alleged that defendant took the letter from his hand. On coming out of the lift on the ground floor, defendant took a fountain pen from the boy's jacket pocket, but finding there was no ink in it, demanded a pencil, which the office boy gave to him. Defendant then went up to a pillar, and wrote something of the letter.

The coile went across with defendant to the Post Office but the latter took no notice of him. After he had pointed out the letter-box, the coile returned to Union Building. Within a short interval, defendant returned to the building but the coile could not say where he went to. It would be given in evidence that defendant left the office a few seconds after the letter for Mr. Summers.

Defendant was at most times in Mr. Summers's office. When he was arrested, the office boy was brought up, and he stated that defendant was the European, and persisted that that was so.

Mr. A. W. Summers was the first witness called. He bore out Inspector Shannon's statements, but added that defendant applied unofficially for a position as pilot in the Gale Company; but nothing was done.

After further evidence by the office assistant and the office boy had been given, his Worship adjourned the hearing to April 14 at 2.15 p.m.

ENGLAND'S SECRET EARTHQUAKE.

Church Wrecked and Houses Damaged.

VILLAGE SCARS.

I motored through a great stretch of Essex smashed and rent by an earthquake. I passed through villages and tiny hamlets where the churches have no steeples, and cruel gashes can be seen in the walls of the houses.

I inspected streets where every house has been damaged, and I spoke to eye-witnesses who narrowly escaped death, writes D.D. in a mail week Daily Express.

My first visit was to the village of Langenhoe. In the cosy inn bar sat old Sam Winter. It was snowing outside and the tiny village pond was occupied by one laconic duck.

I noticed three or four of the countrymen were smiling at Sam and grinning at me. He coughed, pulled hard at his tankard, and pushed a newspaper over to me.
Then he said quietly in the rich brogue of Essex:—

"Be no earthquakes? Ho! Ho!
Ho! Young feller, on April 22, 1884, I mind a little bother. It shook folk from Colchester to Langenhoe. It took the steeple from Langenhoe Church, my boy, and from St. Mary's in Wivenhoe, and from the church at Fingring-hoe, I mind!"

"That be right," said the bar company.
"And there be houses in Wivenhoe still broken by it and many men who can swear to missing death through it," said old Sam, "and I 'member my mother—rest her spirit—rushing me into the street when the flames were a-coming out of the earth! Cattle were a-dying and houses a-breaking," said old Sam, and drained the tankard.

"Aye—that be right," said the bar company.

Terrified County.
And so I heard the story of England's Secret Earthquake and took a motorcar and went over the Essex countryside to see for myself.

The rest of England does not appear to have heard of this amazing quake which terrified Essex that April day forty seven years ago. There is not a man, woman, or child in these ubiquitous little villages who cannot give you the date and some account of the accident.

It is as fresh as yesterday to these countrymen, and is still hotly discussed in the tiny local halls and wonderful little bar parlours.
The first man I questioned in Wivenhoe took me into his house and showed me a great beam jolted out of place.

"It did that," he said, "and my father rushed us out of the house and shouted to the neighbours.
One paving stone crashed just in front of one of our neighbours.
And look over there." He pointed to St. Mary's Church. "The steeple of that came off that day."

Langenhoe Church, a splendid old pile, lonely in its lichen-choked churchyard, has enormous rents in its sides. It, too, lost its tower that day. On the door was a fragile notice announcing that this was the time to take out licences for armorial bearings.

It was here I learned the fallings of earthquake hunting. My motor-car sank in swampy ground up to the running boards, and I had to plod far along the road in search of a horse to pull us out.

Fire, Too!
And at this Langenhoe Church there is nothing but a farm. When I asked the jovial-looking farmer to loan me his steed he said:
"And what would be taking ye with a car to that church?"

"I'm investigating an earthquake," I replied.
"Eh?" he chuckled. "Oh fine.
But wait till I show ye to Johnny.
He'll like it grand. He's bin a gloomy horse these three weeks!"

One buxom countrywoman said to me, "Why, I was a kiddie in school where the garage is now when it broke on us. And all the teachers ran out and left we babes to fend for ourselves! And the fire that sprang from the ground!"

This short tour was one of the eeriest experiences of my life.
It was like rushing through a little Pompeii known only to a few dozen old countrymen, who gaped at you and then grinned to their cronies.

"Here be a man, Bob, who has never heard o' the quake. Ho ho, ho!"

I returned to my first stopping-place, Old Sam was investigating a fresh tankard. He caught sight of me, grinned and waved the Daily Express—mischievously in my direction.

"Quakes!" chuckled Old Sam, "aye there bin a little bother, a little bother."
"That be right," roared the bar company joyously.

WORLD TOUR ON "DIMES."

American Traveller's 27 Years' Savings.

THRIFT HABIT.

"Save your pennies and go round the world," is the advice of Mr.
Oscar S. Bodenhausen, an American, who is spending a week in Britain after visiting most of the countries in the world on the strength of saving his dimes for the past 27 years.

"In 1903," he told a Press Association reporter, "I conceived a great hankering to travel. I had not the money, but I determined to save. From that day I started putting aside every possible dime (about 5d. in British money) towards that end. I had got into the habit of turning out my pockets every night and carefully picking out all the dimes and putting them aside. It has become as natural to me as having my bath. "My average savings in dimes has been about two and a half dollars per week (about 10s. in British money). This I took to the bank each week and put on time deposit with compound interest twice a year. The result is that my dream has come true."

How the Dimes Crept Up.

The dimes crept up from my first week savings of $2.10 (two dollars ten cents) to 3,700 dollars roughly $760, and I am actually going home still with nearly $70 in my pocket.
That money is going right away again for I have made up my mind to come back to Britain—on dimes again in two years time."

Mr. Bodenhausen or "Little Oscar" as he is jokingly called because he is 6ft. 4ins. tall and broad in proportion, like Britain the best of all the countries he has seen.
He has been to the Hawaiian Islands, Japan, Korea, Manchuria, China, the Philippine Islands, Malay States, Burma-India, India, Ceylon and all over Europe. He suggests that children of five should put aside their pennies and half pennies and save them for travel. By the time they were 21 they would have enough to go round the world. As mementoes for his friends Mr.
Bodenhausen is taking back hundreds of small coins from every country he has visited.

Overland China Mail.

A WEEK'S PAPERS IN ONE.

A terrible tragedy involving the death of a young European lady very well-known and popular in the Colony, marred the enjoyment of the Easter season. The young lady, who was motoring with a friend, was thrown out of the car, and so badly injured that she died within a very short time of being rushed to hospital. The OVERLAND CHINA MAIL contains a report of the sad affair.

Sidelights on standards of living from the point of view of the Chinese business man, featured a piquant case in the Bankruptcy Court. Debtor, who admitted having gone into bankruptcy through speculation in the share boom of 1929, strongly repudiated suggestions that certain expenses appearing in a list submitted to the Court were not essential for the securing of business. The case is fully reported in the OVERLAND CHINA MAIL.

Features of the Easter Race Meeting, over two days, were the defeat of some well-fancied favourites, and one or two exceptional dividends. The OVERLAND CHINA MAIL gives a complete account of the racing, in the course of which two or three local records were broken.

Two deaths of well-known residents were reported during the week. Mr. A. V. Apcar, a resident of 38 years' standing, died suddenly in London; whilst Mr. K. C. Lau, a prominent business man and racing owner, died after an ineffectual operation for appendicitis. The deaths are recorded in the OVERLAND CHINA MAIL.

A successful annual Rifle Shooting Meeting was held at Stonecutters' at Easter by the Volunteer Corps, and is fully reported in the OVERLAND CHINA MAIL.

There is no phase of the life of the Colony or of China that does not receive attention in the OVERLAND CHINA MAIL—the weekly paper that YOU MUST ORDER NOW.

Letters to relatives and friends in other parts of the world frequently fail to be written even by the most ardent correspondents. It is a kindly thought, therefore, to ensure that those away from the Colony, or folks at Home, should have an unfailing supply of Hong Kong and Chinese news every week—by means of a subscription to the "Overland China Mail."

Without any trouble of packing on your part, and at the cost only of $4.75 for three months, the

Depression in Shipping

The ominous falling off in our foreign trade, and the increased proportion of shipping laid up, are facts that are emphasised in the annual report of the Liverpool Steam Ship Owners' Association which was approved at the annual meeting of members in Liverpool.

An analysis of the trade returns for 1930 shows that we bought in 1930 a volume of food and manufactures greater than in 1929 and considerably greater than in 1913. Our only reduction on the debit side of the account has been in the volume of raw materials, largely needed to enable us to manufacture for sale. On the credit side of the account, our exports and re-exports (excluding coal) have fallen in volume by 18 per cent. compared with 1929. Our exports of coal have fallen by 9 per cent., and in 1930 were 18,000,000 tons, or 23.9 per cent., less than in 1913.

It is true that the difference between the volume of imports and exports is to some extent offset by the difference in values. We bought our imports at an all round price level 12 per cent. below that of 1929 and sold our exports at a price level 5 per cent. only below that of 1929. But the very fact that we have kept our selling prices at this high level is in the main responsible for the heavy falling off in the volume of our exports. The maintenance of high prices in the face of, and as a means to meet, a decline in selling power is as clear a road to national as to individual trading disaster.

Prior to 1914, as our dependency on our overseas supplies increased, it was met, and more than met, by a corresponding increase in the volume and value of our exports. In 1913 the value of our exports as a whole represented 80 per cent. of that of our imports. In 1929 the figure was 69 per cent., and in 1930 only 63 per cent.

Idle Vessels.

For British shipping, the report continues, last year meant an unprecedented volume of unemployment and under-employment.

At the end of the year there were 659 ships of a gross tonnage of 2,513,000 tons laid up, of which 95 per cent. represented vessels of 1,000 tons and upwards. The number of vessels of the size laid up represented 15 per cent. of British ocean-going tonnage as a whole. So bad was the position in the closing months of the year that shipowners were in a difficulty even to find lying up accommodation for their idle vessels. Of the ships that remained in commission, the great majority were run at a loss in an effort to keep together established trades.

SCENE IN HARBOUR.

BOATS ASHORE AND BOATS AT FULL SPEED.

A correspondent writes as follows to the Singapore Free Press:—

Just after the Pittsburg left the Tanjong Pagar wharf, her five motor launches followed — The first three took a round turn towards the middle passage eastwards — one of the remaining two tried a short cut, and was duly piled up between the two Red stone beacons marking Tembaraga Rocks. The remaining launch motored to render assistance and soon followed suit.

As luck would have it, the tide was making slowly — the other three launches returned to assist, and could have done so had it not been for three Harbour Board tugs racing to get home, who ignored the difficulties the American bluejackets, etc., were in, and tore past at full speed, leaving behind them heavy rollers which soon broke on the rocks and materially damaged the bottoms and rudders of the launches that were on shore.

Admitting that the two launches were trespassing (!) upon the Board's property, these Malay skippers should be at all times instructed to exercise common sense in passing other small craft in danger, which they are quite capable of doing without causing annoyance to those in temporary distress.

Whilst the general impression prevails that the Harbour Board would like to lock up the two entrances to Keppel Straits, a certain amount of consideration should be shown to the public as long as the Straits remain an open thoroughfare, and is a free passage for all.

Hong Kong, Friday, April 10, 1931.

A SAD BUSINESS.

Hong Kong is an easy target for satire, and it is only to be expected that sharp literary wits would expose it for what it is—a South of England suburb transplanted to the China Sea.
But perhaps there are some of us who are not ashamed of living in a suburb and would resent it if the Colony were run on any other social lines. Whatever we are, and we are of all sorts and conditions, we are all very necessary to the welfare of this part of the Empire; not perhaps as individuals, but in the mass. If we are not Government Servants we are employed in business houses upon whose commercial transactions the financial stability of the Colony is largely dependent. We are all vital little cogs in the wheel of Imperial development, and it may not seem to matter two hoots to Lord Passfield and the British public whether we play Bridge or mah-jongg, whether we read Mr. Priestley or Mr.
H. B. Lawrence, or whether we have no intellectual life at all beyond occasional concerts of instrumental music in the Helena May Institute. On the other hand, although it would be dangerous to say that it is the rule, it is assuredly not the exception that ability and efficiency are allied to culture and the pursuit of intellectual pleasures. The London Civil Service contains some of the highest intelligences in the Empire, a fact for which our dramatists and authors have perhaps reason to be thankful and we wish we could say the same for the Colonial Service.

Unfortunately it is not possible to do so. Apart from the Indian Civil Service, the entrance examinations for which are exceedingly stiff, the other branches of the Colonial Service admit of the entry of many second and third-rate intelligences, and, in some departments, of persons who should never be in the Government Service at all. By some process peculiar to British Colonies, men possessing not the slightest qualification attain the highest posts that a Government has to offer, and as a direct result we see every day crass examples of muddle, waste, inefficiency, and work given to deputies and juniors who are far abler than their seniors. Thus, the people who by virtue of their official positions are the social leaders of a Colony, are frequently found to possess the culture and intellectual quality expected of the average artisan. The remaining few, who arrived from Home with at least a few ideals higher than Bridge and golf, yield to apathy and the social mood, and things which at Home are placed by every class in positions of importance—art, music, the opera, the drama, museums and libraries—exist only in a weak and stagnant form which we can afford to ignore.
Art hardly exists here at all, save perhaps for an occasional exhibition held in a hired room, after great difficulty and persuasion; yet we have in our midst artists of undoubted ability who could earn comfortable incomes at Home if they wished to commercialise their gifts. The same criticism applies to music, which in this Colony is confined to petty little soirees arranged after the manner of a Mothers' Union meeting, and which the majority of the public refrain from attending. Opera, except for the Philharmonic Society's annual productions and the efforts of Mr.
Strok to bring celebrated artists to the Island, is unknown here, and only occasionally touring companies, which are seldom first-rate, give performances in our inadequate public theatre, with its bad lighting, its hopeless acoustics, and its insufficient dressing-rooms. As for the drama, we are reliant here upon the generous activity of a handful of amateurs, because no good company would ever dream of paying a professional visit to the Colony. Our museum and library, which we have so often criticised in these columns, are a disgrace to any civilised community and none would suffer if they were to be closed to the public and added as an extension to the "Cheero Club for Soldiers and Sailors." The bitter truth is that the Government does not take the slightest interest in the cultural life of the community, and does nothing to ameliorate the conditions obtaining in the Colony which make residence here so dreary an event for a great many of us. If it were not for the various Associations and Clubs and parish debates, which the more energetic organise in their spare hours, we should be in a state of perpetual melancholia. It is left to private enterprise to achieve anything worth while, and to those individuals, who help to brighten our lives in the face of active discouragement and often official hostility, we take off our hats.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MUSICAL PERFORMANCES.

(To the Editor of the "China Mail.")

Sir,—There have been several displeased comments on the fact that the Sakharoffs' performance after one postponement has now been cancelled altogether. Whatever may be the reason for this second disappointment, the public can scarcely be blamed for feeling somewhat indignant over this treatment, coming as it does so soon after the prolonged uncertainty as to the date of Toti Dal Monte's recital.

I wish to point out that the Hong Kong Musical Society, which does its best to disseminate advance information with regard to forthcoming concerts, is as much inconvenienced by these changes as anybody, and can only pass on such information as is received from impresarios and advance agents. The revised dates for the Sakharoff Dancers were not circulated by the Society, as we felt we should incur part of the blame in the event of another cancellation: and as things have turned out our decision was justified.

The only impending musical event to which attention can be drawn at the moment—in this case with a fair certainty that it will take place, since the artists is in the Colony—is the second piano recital by Youra Guller on Tuesday, April 21, at 9.20 p.m. in the Helena May Institute. At the first recital, which we took the responsibility of organising, the audience was most enthusiastic, and it is due to the keen desire expressed by many that they should have another opportunity of hearing this splendid artiste, that she is giving a further performance before her departure.
On this occasion the concert will take place at 9.20 p.m., which will probably suit many people better than an afternoon recital.

Yours, etc.,
A. M. BOWES-SMITH,
Hon. Secretary,
H.K. Musical Society.

THIS VOLUNTEERING RACKET!

(To the Editor of "China Mail.")

Sir,—The annual inspection of the Volunteers has, I see, brought forth the perennial grouse against the "slackers" of the Colony, although the G.O.C. struck a new line of thought when he indicated that the census which had recently been taken will provide information making it possible to arrive at the number of those who are "evading their obligations to the British Empire." Just what the General is going to do about it when he gets this information, he does not say, but it is a nice idea anyway.

Now, as one who has not yet graduated into the Methuselah class, but who has nevertheless no intention of becoming a Volunteer in this Colony, I would beg the favour of your space to explain my reasons for my attitude.

I will preface my remarks by stating that for young men in their early twenties, I consider Volunteering an excellent form of sport, and with a crowd of decent fellows, really good fun. What I object to, however, is the current military point of view toward Volunteering, in its relation to the citizens of this Colony.

The late lamented holocaust that swept over Europe brought to light one very strong fact, and it is that "cannon fodder" can be manufactured at remarkably short notice. It may not be very good material, but it was willing, and it was good enough for its purpose. This being so, I fail to see why presumably intelligent human beings should spend years of their life—and of their spare time—in learning to form fours, hit bulls' eyes, and so forth.

The type of man we have in the Volunteers—the type of man who is expected to become a Volunteer —is just the man who was told in the late War that it was his duty to take commissioned rank. He will be told the same thing in the next war, and in spite of any service he may have had with institutions like the Volunteer Corps, he will still have to undergo a course of training (quite rightly) before he is put in command of men of his own. I maintain, therefore, that our Volunteer Corps, as it is constituted to-day, serves no useful purpose. We are told that in the event of a military emergency, the training one has received here would be of invaluable help to which I venture to reply "Boh!" In five days any normal bourgeois could knock as much into the average man's head as the Volunteer Corps could in five years! The conclusion is obvious, therefore, and it is that until the local Volunteers are organised more as an Officers' Cadet Corps, rather than as a regimental unit, the Corps is not fulfilling its real duty. To my way of thinking, every man in the Corps should be able to get out in front and drill his own Company, and at least sixty per cent. of the Corps should be able to put the entire Corps through battalion drill. Every man should be instructed in the rudiments of military history, and in the elements of tactics and strategy, with particular reference to the newer forms of warfare—mechanical, aerial, bacteriological, etc.

Another thing puzzles me in these "Volunteer" arguments, and it is that reference is always made to "military" emergencies. The life-blood of the Empire is its trade, after all, but what would happen in the event of a "civil" emergency similar to the military ones always so much feared? Supposing an epidemic—by some strange freak of nature—were to lay low the majority of the business men of Hong Kong; could the Army step in and keep the wheels of commerce revolving for us?
Good fellows though they are, I doubt it. I would give much to see Lieutenant Nash frowning over a bill of lading, or wondering just what magic was involved in the entering and clearing of even the meanest tramp that sails the high seas! Even more would I enjoy seeing Colonel Pom-Pom struggling with the intricacies of "double entry." At the moment, he probably imagines it has something to do with this new contract Bridge, and he sleeps none the worse of night for his belief!

I am aware that a certain few officers spend part of their time at places like the London School of Economics, where they are initiated into the mysteries of international law, economic science, etc.
But the percentage of officers who undergo such instruction is infinites-imally smaller than the percentage of Volunteers to non-Volunteers in this Colony. Likewise, they get leave of absence from their normal duties for such courses, which is more than the unfortunate—or enthusiastic, as you will—Volunteer gets for his parades.

No, Sir! When I see muchberibboned majors, and bright young subalterns, pouring over their books on Commercial Arithmetic at Night Schools in this Colony, then I shall be prepared to reconsider my views regarding Volunteering. Until then, however, nothing doing!

I am afraid this is a lengthy epistle, Mr. Editor, but I think it is time someone blew up this bogey.

"LAI TEE."

P.S.—May I, in passing, be allowed to congratulate the Corps on its really excellent show last night?

Hong Kong April 10.

MR. SIT KOK-SIN.

ANNUAL BIRTHDAY BANQUET.

A BRILLIANT FUNCTION.

Mr. Sit Kok-sin, the celebrated Cantonese actor, gave a brilliant reception and banquet to his friends, both Chinese and foreign, on the occasion of his birthday, in the Kam Ling Restaurant last night. Several hundred guests attended, the scene being a brilliant one.

In addition to a traditional, and extremely colourful Chinese entertainment, a special orchestra had been engaged to cater to those who cared to dance in the European style. Not the least acceptable part of the evening was an impromptu "show" by several of Mr. Sit's friends just prior to dinner.

Mr. Sit Kok-sin, probably the pre-eminent actor in South China to-day, is now appearing with his company in the Koshing Theatre.

INCREASE IN SCOUT WORKERS.

Warranted Scout workers in actual work with Scout Groups numbered 54,210, an increase of 7,051.
The number of Commissioners appointed during 1930 was 3,050, an increase of 268. This with an increase of 1,792 other local officials to a total of 18,168 was regarded as a sign of extended interest in the Scout Movement on the part of the public.

TALKIE TALKS

by Diane

"Flight." A Columbia picture with a man whom we all liked in the old days—Jack Holt and his Buddy in pictures, Ralph Graves. It was the first flying talkie, and it is still, to my mind, one of the best of them all. It is a tale of two hard-boiled Marine Corps flyers in Florida and Nicaragua (scene of the recent disaster). The air shots are magnificent, and the Director, Frank Capri, is to be commended. Sweet Lila Lee is the romance involved. Another good acting part is done by young Harold Goodwin. If you ask my opinion you will not miss this film.—(Central).

"The Sea Bat." A South Seas picture, taken in the real surroundings in Mexico. What an-

"Suppose you lost your mastery over the car?"
"Don't worry about my financial affairs."—Nebelspiller, Zurich.

other? You will say! Yes; but this has Charles Bickford, and that makes it something better than ordinary. Then, too, there is the assortment of dialects. Nils Asther with Swedish-English, Raquel Torres with her Spanish-English and George Marion (of "Ann Christie") talking like an Italian fruit seller. Story? Oh, an escaped convict lands on a remote South Sea Island and steals the clothes of a missionary. Imagine the complications. Wearing the cloth he has to convert the soul, and bury the natives, and, of course, has his strongest spiritual battle with the flaming torrid Raquel. I found that more interesting than his fight with the large animal known in its local waters as "The Sea Bat." Not too great, but a Bickford picture is never waste of time.—(Queen's).

"The Spoilers." Twice I have seen this in the Movies. Am I right when I say Milton Sills and Noah Beery in one version, and Thomas Santschi and Willie Farnum in another? If the finest fight between two men ever filmed is an attraction to you (at a distance it is to me) do not miss this. Besides there is the "Montana Kid" himself, Gary Cooper and William (stage) Boyd. Rex Beach's story of the Alaskan gold rush; direction by Edwin Carewe; Betty Compson and Kay Johnson with a long list of names all up to standard.

The name that counts with me is Gary Cooper, reputed to be the Garbo's favourite actor, and the boy with an enormous following to-day. See him in this play, then go and see "Morocco." You will realise the boy is clever. What has made him a great actor? That is a secret. It may be his past love for Clara Bow, or his present passion for Lupe Velez; or the Hollywood Directors. I am inclined to think it is his love of Nature, of Mother Earth, of the mountains, the prairies, the valleys. Gary Cooper, who got his first part in "The Winning of Barbara Worth" because he could ride, has gone on and on and will never stop till he steps into the shoes of the never-to-be-forgotten Wallie Reid. We who know pictures from their infancy pay him a compliment when we say this.

Three things are always with Gary, a portrait of his mother, another of Lupe, and—Rudyard Kipling's "If." He says "It comes nearest to what I am trying to follow." He does not find the satisfying things of life in a social life in Hollywood. He adores Montana. See the fire in his eyes when he talks of horses, cattle, sunsets, the prairie. This seemingly-shy lad has poetry in his words and emotion in his voice. His parents (both British) sent him to Bedford College, took him away from Montana, but he fretted so much they brought him back to it. He is an outdoor man through and through. No mannerisms, not strictly good looking, tall, gaunt, shy; but he has that something that keeps you guessing which so few possess. His episode with Clara Bow when he acted with her in "Children of Divorce" nearly did him in—in the pictures, but Paramount put him in a different type of play all the time, and he still wins through. Now in "Morocco" he is not overshadowed by a great artist like Marlene Dietrich, and I am still at a loss to know what has caused this transformation of making a cowboy into a great actor. See "The Spoilers" and certainly see "Morocco." Gary Cooper is worth watching. (King's).

Easily the best thing that Ronald Colman has done in the Talkies, that is, with the exception of his latest, "The Devil to Pay." Do not miss seeing how delightful he is in "Raffles." If you have read the story of the handsome young cricketer who lived quite another life by night, you will like this version. Kay Francis is not the only one who would have followed him to Paris, adventurer as he is. David Torrence, brother of the most famous Ernest—is good as the Scottish detective. I like Alison Skipworth as Lady Meroose and Frederick Kerr, as good as he was in "The Lady of Scandal." Yes, Ronnie IS delightful. (Star).

Quite a step from "The Treadpasser," and yet I like Gloria romping round as a comedienne. Versatility is her middle name. I am glad she had the courage to play in such a farce. One thing disappointed. Her rather high-pitched speaking voice. Her singing is sweetly pretty. The gowns are Gloria to a "T"—perfection. I like Owen Moore and Lew Cody. I like the setting—and I adore Gloria, who still photographs like a million dollars. Admitted I want her the next time in drama, but give me Gloria Swanson anyhow and any time. (World).

Johnny Mack Brown gives the show of his life in "Billy the Kid." The story is unreal but lively, and the star is grandly supported. In real life this outlaw was a cold-blooded killer, but he is cleaned up for the Talkies, and a hero and a gentleman. Wallace Beery on his tracks all the time, and Kay Johnson the blond motif. All quite exciting and I like him better in this than in previous performances. (Queen's).

"Follow Through" is from another highly successful musical comedy. Again a golf story with Nancy Carroll as the pretty golfer who is beaten in the championship by Thelma Todd, till she is coached by the professional, Buddy Rogers. Then the glorious finale. Zelma O'Neil and Jack Haley from the original stage production add the comedy. There are songs in plenty. "Love in the Rough" was a riot here, so there will be packed houses to see this too. I am not a golfer, nor a Buddy Rogers fan, and I favour Nancy in drama, so I do not rave over this. Let it go at that. (King's).

Shortly we are to be introduced to a very great actress, the newest star of Paramount—and they have made many—the beautiful Marlene Dietrich. I am sick and tired of the "fans" who compare her with Jeanne Eagles and Garbo. There is NO comparison. This woman is ALONE. See "Morocco" and you will agree. It is not a play for the babes; it IS hot stuff. This woman of the Morocco cabaret is vivid, fascinating, and she will stir up storms of talk. There is masterly direction by von Sternberg, the man who brought her from Germany. He has overcome her slight accent in a remarkable manner. You will find her sentences are short and scattered. There are remarkable photographic effects of sun and shadow in the bazaars of this centuries-old desert town. Those moonlight scenes in the narrow streets with dimly moving figures, a married woman seeking her Legionaire lover, a cabaret singer fluttering moth-like after the same personable young man, and Gary Cooper, from now on to be branded with the title of "The Screen's Lover," and what is more marvellous to relate, he hardly embraces Marlene. It is just what this man LEADS one to imagine that makes him the great actor he is now. I won't tell you more of the story, but that last glimpse of the woman throwing off her shoes and tramping off into the desert with the native women, the slim white figure willing to go where he goes; his slave following her man to the desert is stamped on my memory. This woman is an actress. Good woman, bad woman, how can we tell? She is just a human being roughly handled by fate, a fiery, lovable, alluring mistletoe—plentiful figure, yet every breath she draws will make you believe in this woman's great love, which spells sacrifice. Adolphe Menjou is as good as ever, in the part of the Frenchman who offers her marriage. See "Morocco" if it should jack the Central.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP.

A few come-backs. Thomas Meighan, Mae Murray, Laura La Plante, Monte Blue, Clara Kimball Young, Bryant Washburn, and Gretchen Nissen. Now wait and see. Maurice Chevalier is at work on "The Smiling Lieutenant" a gay belongs.

Elissa Landi, the famous British actress now with Charles Farrell, a well-known authoress, with two Menjou is as good as ever, in the part of the Frenchman who offers her marriage. See "Morocco" if it should jack the Central.

Rudy Wallace has left the Paramount Theatre after many months. Popularity is on the wane, except on the Radio and Records. Why was he allowed to appear in the Talkies? Admirers of John Gilbert will be glad to hear of his success at last in the Talkies. His newest "Gentleman's Fate" will put him back where he belongs.

ROUND THE CINEMAS

"THE SEA BAT"

Wonderful photographic achievements are noticed in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's talking picture "The Sea Bat" which opened a three-day run in the Queen's Theatre yesterday. Charles Bickford, the star of "Dynamite" and "The South Sea Rose," is in the leading role with Raquel Torres. Nils Asther is heard for the first time locally, and the cast includes John Miljan and George F. Marion, who did good work in "Ann Christie."

The story is related on an island in the South Seas, where the natives dive for sponges during the day, and indulge in Voodoo dances at night. Bickford's role is that of an escaped convict who, in the disguise of a parson, lands in the island and is attracted to Miss Torres.

Many spectacular scenes of diving operations under water are depicted, and exciting battles with the Giant Ray (a large monster found in the warm waters of the South Seas) are also featured.

Supporting "The Sea Bat," there are screened the latest Hearst movie-tone newswear, a musical "George Lyons" and a hilarious Our Gang Comedy, entitled "Bear Shooters."

"FOLLOW THROUGH"

Black-haired, black-eyed, handsome Charles Rogers and red-haired, blue-eyed Nancy Carroll, the lovers of "Abie's Irish Rose," of "Close Harmony," make a "peach of a pair" in Paramount's all-Technicolor moving picture production of the famous Schwab and Mandel stage hit "Follow Through."

"Follow Through" which will open to-day in the King's Theatre, is a love story with a Golf Club setting and a world of comedy, tinged and a world of comedy. Laurence Schwab, himself, went to Hollywood to direct it in conjunction with Lloyd Corrigan, taking with him everything he needed from the original two-year Broadway hit, including Zelma O'Neil and Jack Haley, its lively, youthful, convulsing comic leads. Also he brought with him the catchy song hits, including "Button Up Your Overcoat," and Paramount song writers supplied him with a few new ones.

"Follow Through" is a pert and peppy outdoor story. Nancy Carroll, with ambitions to win a championship crown on the links, diverts her attention from golf to the handsome Club professional, Charles Rogers, and gives her rival, Thelma Todd, a chance to hole out first. Successful on the fairways, Thelma tries her talent at love-making, but Nancy refuses to give her any advantage there. Rogers has an eye for golf champions, so that Nancy, to win a husband, has first to win the golf crown.

comedy with some songs and Claude Colbert again opposite. Janet Gaynor has been ill in a hospital in Honolulu. Her latest with Charles Farrell is not too highly praised.

Ernest Lubitsch will again direct Emil Jannings in "The Man I Killed."

There is no denying the fact that Charles Chaplin's "City Lights" is another masterpiece.

Silvia Sydney, who is to be with Gary Cooper, replacing Clara Bow, will be remembered in "Through Different Eyes" with Warner Baxter. She is from the New York stage, but this is her first real chance in the Talkies.

It was said that singing films were not popular, but with Lawrence Tibbets in "The New Moon" and "The Southerner" packing the theatres, it goes to show the public still likes good music. John Boles is another favourite.

Kay Francis drove up to her wedding to Kenneth McKenna in an ambulance from a hospital where she had been treated for a jaw ailment. Gave her name as Katherine Gibbs, aged 25, and his real name came out as Leo Mielzner, aged 31.

Pretty little Josephine Dunn, whom we loved in the Movies, has married since her divorce, a wealthy oil operator.

THE LAWN TENNIS

Revolutionary Move Pending.

AMATEUR PROPOSALS.

Big and highly important happenings appear to be nending in lawn tennis, writes Trevor C. Wignall in the Daily Express. Ever since Tilden and Hunter, the Americans, turned to professionalism some little time ago it has been known that proposals will presently be made to British and Continental players to follow their example. At the moment what is already called the "Tilden Circus" is attracting prize-fight gates in New York and Boston, the principal games, of course, being those between the former amateur champion of the world and Karel Kozeluh, the Czechoslovakian. Remarkable guarantees have been offered Tilden to take his troupe to Australia and other countries, and one possibility is that he will be induced to visit London this summer for the purpose of engaging in a tournament that will be in direct opposition to Wimbledon.

Novel Regulation.

There is one other very significant move. At Queen's Club, London, the Lawn Tennis Professional Association will hold its annual general meeting. The agenda, in the main is of the ordinary kind, but the final business to be discussed is the proposed passing of this new rule: "That amateurs who become professionals shall not be eligible to compete in professional competitions until a qualifying period of not less than six months has expired since becoming a professional." There are 120 members of the L.T.P.A.—and about 1,000 professional tennis players throughout the Empire—and I understand that the novel and quite unexpected regulation will be agreed to with acclamation.

Scooping the Pool.

I had a talk with Mr. M. F. Mousley, the honorary secretary of the L.T.P.A., and he told me that no one belonging to his body will be in the least surprised if in a few months' time many celebrated amateurs embrace professionalism. The idea of the new rule is to prevent the newcomers from scooping the pool at tournaments that are almost certain to be arranged. It is likely competitions will be promoted that will be much on the lines of the pelota games in Spain. The larger towns in the provinces will figure in this quite as much as London, while plans are also being discussed to run a world's championship, which will be open to all. It is hoped that this latter will be possible in June, July, or August of this year, but much will depend on the amount of money that can be collected. The prizes, naturally, will be cash, and it is not without interest that the L.T.P.A. will raise their subscription to two guineas for all members over twenty-one years of age.

Tilden's Debut.

Tilden has shown in America that there is a public for professional tennis. There was a huge crowd for his first match with Kozeluh at Madison Square Garden, and it was even asserted that his "circus" would seriously affect boxing and wrestling. When Suzanne Lenglen turned professional her tour was a failure because no one could be found who could give her a game. Most of her appearances were in exhibition, but I think it can be stated now—and this is well within my knowledge—that when she was engaged by Mr. Pyle and Mr. Cochran both firmly believed that a famous British woman player would also become a professional. The original intention was to pair Lenglen and the British woman in matches all over the world. The project fell down when the British woman declined to give up her amateur status.

Social Occasion.

The rulers of lawn tennis, particularly in Britain, are still antagonistic to open tennis championships, but it is beginning to look as though they will shortly find themselves out in the cold. It was suggested to me that this will be the last year for Wimbledon as it is at present conducted. There may be a mile of exaggeration in this, but that we are rapidly approaching the day when professionals and amateurs will mingle is absolutely certain. There has been the usual sale of tickets for the next Wimbledon tournament, but it needs to be remembered that its patrons are largely women, and that it is as much a social occasion as a sport festival. If another meeting is arranged, and it attracts the majority of the leading players, Wimbledon will probably find itself deserted.

A point that the controllers will not recognise is that there are now very few people on earth who are willing to credit that there are more than a handful of pure amateur tennis players. The majority are unquestionably out-and-out professionals for the reason that they accept liberal expenses and such odds and ends as free board and lodging. Some have a set scale for their services, but in spite of that, the professional amateur is still not allowed to play with a paid player, except when the latter is procured to give lessons. Kozeluh has frequently accepted a wage to tutor the British Davis Cup team, but when, last year, he asked for a special dispensation to play the winner of the Wimbledon men's singles, the whole of the proceeds to go to charity, he was informed that permission could not be granted. The whole position today is farcical and unwholesome, and there will be many who will feel relieved at the prospect that the air is about to be cleared.

Wimbledon Supreme.

Wimbledon stands alone as a venue for important tennis, but I am told in authority that if those who rule it decline to leave it to professionals another site will be sought. The White City may soon be the greatest sports centre in Europe. The Amateur Athletic Association and other equally important bodies are regarding it with appreciative eyes, and there is no reason on earth why the world's tennis championship could not be decided there. The clinician fact is that lawn tennis is at the parting of the ways. Sensational announcements may be anticipated, but if these are the game of its athletes only good will result. From what I hear there will be few amateurs by the end of the season.

CURIOUS CRICKET INCIDENT.

Was the Batsman Out or Not?

The following incident took place in the Alor Star v. Sungei Patani cricket match at Sungei Patani recently, says the Straits Echo.

"An Alor Star batsman skied a ball to square leg and the fieldsmen brought off a running catch with both hands, but in doing so fell forward and his knuckles touched the ground. The rest of the field exclaimed 'well held' and the batsman started off to the Pavilion. When he had gone half way the umpire at the bowler's end said 'not out' and the batsman started walking back. The Sungei Patani captain called for the ball, threw it to the wicket keeper, had the balls dislodged and appealed to the other umpire who gave the man 'out.' This was questioned by some of the Alor Star team who held that the ball was 'dead.' The batsman made no appeal at all, but walked off in the first instance.

"In the Sungei Patani 2nd innings a similar catch was taken, the fieldsmen's knuckles touching the ground, and the umpire said 'not out' but the batsman said he was and walked back to the Pavilion."

There is too great a tendency in Britain to put inexperienced youngsters up against seasoned fighters, and it does them far more harm than good. That is not allowed in America, where no boxer under the age of 21 is permitted to engage in contests of more than six rounds—duration. Dive Tamiansky, Al Brown's manager.

Individual merit there may be, but it does not necessarily refer to the man who puts the finishing touch to a forward movement. That is one reason why I would welcome the abolition of individual goal-scoring charts, which, more often than not, reflect credit on the wrong player. David Jack.

Willie Smith is to-day as great a champion as ever before, and given good health he will remain in the standard for many years to come. Rio Levi.

Cities Linked by Air

Inauguration of air service between Saint John and Halifax, February 23, when a Fairchild plane of the Canadian Airways left the former city for the Nova Scotia capital, marked the further extension of air travel in the Maritimes. In the cut Walter Bate, Saint John superintendent, Canadian Airways, is handing the pilot of the plane, Captain W. H. Irvine, a package of the goods consigned by Canadian city for the Nova Scotia capital. The trip was made in an hour and a half, a distance as the crow or an airplane flies, of about 125 miles.

WEST AUSTRALIAN AIRWAYS.

An Insight Into the Organisation.

STRIKING EFFICIENCY.

The average mail-plane passenger rolls up to the aerodrome in the Company's sedan car in time to see the huge machine, with engines running, all ready to take off on its long flight. It is something to quicken the pulse and inspire fantastic thoughts. Few really know what happens in those hang-ars between the time the machine comes in after a flight, and it comes out again all spick and span, with engines whistling a steady drone, quick to take full throttle and purr loudly as it races across the aerodrome to take the air, says the West Australian Airways Bulletin.

Steamers we know have their 'A1' certificate at Lloyd's, indicating that they are at the highest pitch of sea-worthiness, and there is very much the same for passenger-carrying planes. All aircraft must be certified as airworthy and any repairs and adjustments must be carried out by competent tradesmen and certified to by an engineer licensed by the Government. There are four types of licence and it is no uncommon thing for two or more to be held by one individual in the employ of Airways. Indeed the chief engineer holds all four, being a university-trained engineer with considerable experience in overseas aircraft works.

What Licences Represent.
For instance the "A" licence covers the construction of aircraft, and involves the selection of timber and other materials, its preparation (such as splicing and layout), and a knowledge of air stresses. The holder of the "B" licence must be qualified in the construction and overhaul of aircraft engines, involving the use of new parts or materials. The "C" licence is an expert in the rigging of aircraft wings and control surfaces and the general true-up of the structure.
The "D" licence is for installation and tuning of engines for flight.
That in short is the requirement of the ground staff, on top of which the pilot must be a licensed man of experience and ability. He is responsible for the machine in the air and has to submit himself to a rigid medical test of fitness every six months.
Nothing is left to chance in West Australian Airways hangars. A mail-plane comes in after its long journey and with it goes the pilot's report upon its behaviour, with special notes upon any possible requirements which he has observed.

That is helpful to the big staff of craftsmen, but it is not their only guide, for there is a set procedure which they religiously follow. This provides for a complete examination and includes such items as checking over and testing the ignition system, petrol and oil filters, fuel lines, controls and instruments, while before actual flight, the engines are run, and must give their full horse-power, at which time the oil pressures and other essentials are also checked. Then and then only can the ground engineers sign and hand to the pilot a certificate of airworthiness, and the last word is with the pilot who satisfies himself that the machine is trimmed and running to his satisfaction.

System Adopted By Others.

So thorough is the system which has been developed by West Australian Airways after long years of experience that much of the routine has been made available at the request of the Controller of Civil Aviation to other aircraft operators in Australia which have adopted it as a model. No machine can go for even a five-minute flight without a record of it being made in the plane's log-book, and so it is that the mighty Jupiter engines on the "Hercules" machines undergo a top overhaul consisting of a cleaning of cylinders, valves etc. after every 200 hours in the air, while after every 400 hours in the air, each engine is removed for a complete overhaul when individual components, bearings and the "internals" are carefully inspected. The ordinary motor-car driver and doubtless many aviators would consider this period between overhauls extremely short. The work is expensive too, but it is this close attention to routine and detail which has earned reputation for having their equipment as close to the 100 per cent. efficient as human ingenuity and application can make it.

Since the extension from Derby to Wyndham closed down in November last for the wet season, no less than four special trips have been made beyond Derby, the Summer terminus of the North-West service.
Three of these trips were made to Fitzroy Crossing and one to Hall's Creek. Although unusually severe conditions were encountered on two of these flights, they were completed without delay and rendered particular service to the residents of these far distant areas. The last trip made beyond the Summer terminus followed upon a monsoonal downpour, when over a foot of rain was registered at Derby. The whole country was waterlogged, creeks were running bankers and roads were huge lakes impassable for traffic, while other methods of communication were suffering the effects of the deluge; yet the Airways' machines carried on and provided the connecting link between the city and this far-flung outpost.

It has been decided to re-open the Wyndham extension with the machine leaving Perth, and a grand welcome awaits the pilot who will visit these comparatively isolated areas after a lapse of over three months.

FLYING-BOATS.

BRITAIN'S LARGEST PASSENGER AIRCRAFT.

Successful trial flights were made in mail week from the Rochester seaplane base, Kent, with "SCIPIO," the first of three new metal flying-boats, each weighing 14-tons, and driven by four engines developing a total of 2,400 horse power, which have been ordered by Imperial Airways Limited from Short Brothers, Ltd.

When they pass into service these new flying-boats, which will be the largest British marine-type passenger aircraft yet constructed, will be placed on the Mediterranean sea-routes of the Imperial Airways routes to India and Africa.

The machines epitomise all that has been learned—and such lessons have been extremely valuable—in operating 3-engined "Calcutta" flying-boats of the same manufacture on the Mediterranean link of the Indian airway. These 3-engin-ed boats, during their period of service, have proved admirable craft from a commercial point of view, both in the air and on the water.
Their metal construction has been eminently successful, while their Bristol "JUPITER" engines have rendered consistently reliable service.

The new machines, of which "SCIPIO" is the first, and which are also driven by "JUPITER" engines, are considerably more powerful editions of the "CALCUTTA" type. Not only will they have an improved commercial performance, but their factors of safety and reliability will be still further increased.

Capable of attaining a top speed of 150 miles an hour, and cruising at 100 miles an hour, the new 4-engined boats will carry a paying load of 7,500 lbs. as compared with a pay-load of 4,420-lbs. in the 3-engined "CALCUTTAS." A feature of the new craft, and one devised to cope with growing mail-loads on Empire air routes, is that in addition to seating 15 passengers in a large and most luxuriously equipped saloon—which will have conveniently-placed tables between the armchair seats, and shaded electric lights above each passenger's head—they will have a large compartment in which there will be space for more than 1½-tons of urgent mails.
Engine noise will be reduced to a minimum in the passengers' saloon owing to the use of sound-insulating material between the saloon covering and the outer skin of the hull.

In addition to its passengers, mails and fuel load, each flying-boat will carry a pilot, pilot-navigator, the last-named presiding over a wireless operator, and a steward—
the last-named presiding over a fully-equipped refreshment buffet.

Just behind the pilot's cockpit, in the front of the hull, is a wireless compartment equipped with an installation which will give the flying-boat, while in the air, a wireless range of 550 miles. A telescopic aerial will also be fitted, enabling the machine to transmit messages when resting on the surface of the water.

The two other new four-engined flying-boats, in addition to the "SCIPIO," are of the same "Kent" class, and are to be named "Satyrus" and "Sylvanus." When they, and the new 38-passenger Handley Page machines, are in commission, Imperial Airways will have a fleet of 34 aircraft, developing a total of 48,117 horsepower.

CONFERENCE AND TRUST.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald And India's Need.

London, March 14.
"Until you get India to understand the mind of Britain, it is no use talking of new constitutions," declared Mr. Ramsay MacDonald in a speech at Northampton.
"Unless you get a mental attitude of confidence and trust, you had better not continue your negotiations; you will fail. We are all working at it. Lord Irwin, Mr.
Wedgwood Benn and all of us are doing our best to get India to understand us."

The Prime Minister declared that the help and criticism of Liberal and Conservative colleagues had helped the Government to do something which justified their belief that when they came to close grips with the actual details, further work would be successful and India and Britain would continue co-operating under one Crown.

and quickened senses. He will see it whole. He will see it in its true proportions.

For pessimism is an act of treason to oneself. He who, in the storm, takes his hand from the tiller deserves the fate which always overtakes him. If we must go down, let us go down smiling. It is a curious fact, however, that the proverbial expression is not 'go down smiling' but 'come up smiling.'

MEN WHO DO NOT GET RUINED.

Pessimism Treason to Oneself.

WITS NEEDED.

In these days every man needs all his wits and a little more. He needs to live on a higher plane of interest and enthusiasm. He needs clear eyes, sharper ears. He cannot have these advantages unless he puts gloom out of his heart, writes the Medical Correspondent of Times Trade and Engineering Supplement.

Joy is the only certain antidote to this poison. There are men who can wear a smile in the face of ruin.
These men do not get ruined. The tonic effect of their habit of looking on the bright side of things is such that opportunities are perceived where other men see only darkness.
When this happens we hear of 'miracles' and 'wizards.'

It is a fact that most of the 'wizards' of commerce and industry are happy men. They are not happy because they have succeeded; they have succeeded because they are happy.

Keep Smiling.

Admittedly it is not easy to keep smiling. The happy disposition like the disposition to work is not as a rule, a gift of Providence (though that is always said about it by unhappy folk). It comes by care and effort. When a man has convinced himself that it is a blunder as well as a sin to give way to pessimism he is on the high road to happiness.

He can help himself in various ways. The most important of these is the cultivation of the power of shutting the mind. Dismal people carry their troubles home with them. They nurse them in and out of season. Happy men refuse trouble the freedom of their homes.
They shut out from their minds the difficulties which their work imposes on them so soon as they have finished with that work.

Sense of Proportion.

The man who, in a crisis, can enjoy a good book or a good play or good music is on the high road to success. He is happy; he is independent; he possesses his own soul.

And the odds are that he will surmount his difficulty. For he will come back to it with strong nerves

THE TECHNIQUE OF "JAZZ."

Stravinsky Succumbs to Its Lure.

JOHN IRELAND TOO!

Has the day arrived when the tonal and rhythmical technique loosely classified as "jazz" may reasonably stake its claim to a definite status in the realm of serious music? pertinently en-quires Norman Cameron in the London Daily Telegraph.

Prompted by the rumour that Stravinsky, in addition to rescoring his "Mavra" Overture for Jack Hylton's Band, is composing a new work specifically for the British jazz expert's use, this suggestion is less iconoclastic than musical purists would have us believe. Admittedly, jazz effects, handled with consummate technical skill, have long featured in Stravinsky's music, notably in such works as the stimulating Concerto for piano and wind orchestra. Yet obvious and inevitable though the Russian composer's admiration for Hylton's undoubted, though essentially limited, genius may seem, an echo of Stravinsky's enthusiasm has lately been heard in other distinguished European musicians' appreciative comments upon performances given by the famous dance band in the sacrosanct precincts of the Berlin Philharmonie and the Paris Opera during its recent Continental tour.

Walton and John Ireland.

That the jazz element in serious music is acceptable to even the more high-minded among concert-goers has been demonstrated by the popular success of William Walton's "Facade" and "Portsmouth Point," and by the universal acclamation accorded to Constant Lambert's "Rio Grande." Following these expositions of the young idea came John Ireland's secession from the ranks of academic orthodoxy last Autumn. Declaring that the wonderful range of tone colour obtained by the best modern dance bands could no longer be ignored by serious musicians, he called in the assistance and advice of the leader and personnel of the B.B.C. Dance Orchestra regarding various jazz effects he wished to introduce into his new Piano Concerto.

Whether Ireland's superimposition of a more or less alien element upon his own strongly individual style has proved an unqualified success or merely, as Mr. Ernest Newman has suggested, a corruption of music's good manners by association with an evil thing, concert-goers and wireless listeners have been given opportunity to judge for themselves. For good or ill, the fact remains that an active interest in jazz technique is manifested in the work of more than one or two distinguished modern composers.

During a visit to this country as long ago as 1928, Ravel accused musicians of taking jazz too lightly. Admitting its marked influence upon his own work, he regards it as no vulgar mushroom growth, but rather as a vital contribution towards the production of a national music in the United States.

In musical Germany, too, the jazz element which played no small part in the phenomenal success of Krenk's "Jonny Spielt Auf" persists in Max Brand's sensational "Maschinen Hopkins," lately produced at the Berlin Municipal Opera, and in such significant works as the much-praised "Festiva Overture" of Paul Hoeffler, a youthful disciple of Hindemith.

In fact, the authorities at Frankfurt Conservatoire inaugurated a special class for the study and composition of jazz some time since. Yet there seems little likelihood of our British academicians being similarly inspired. Sir Hugh Allen, for instance, has denounced the "repellent, sordid noises of the Mammon of unrighteous jazz" in no uncertain voice, and Sir Henry Coward detects in its vogue not only the vulgarisation of British tastes and ideals, but also a foreshadowing of the physical and moral degeneracy of the race.

Neither can Delius, most un-academic and unconventional of modern composers though he be, reconcile his innate passion for tranquil, contemplative beauty with what he considers an "awful invention." To him the spectacle of serious musicians attempting to imitate jazz and incorporate it into their music merely suggest that sensationalism is the sole aim and object of what he has christened the "wrong-note school" of modern music.

Where, then, does the truth lie? Can the gamine jazz enter into amicable partnership with its more dignified musical rival, or must the mating of these seemingly incongruous bedfellows be doomed to produce noise by hybrid and ungainly offspring?

Lambert's "Rio Grande." In an interview given to an American musical magazine some years back Poulshoff, the distinguished pianist and composer, neatly epitomised the possible solution to this vexed question. Jazz, he pointed out, was nothing new; merely a development of the syncopation used occasionally by Handel and other classical composers. Writers of American dance music had revived it to an independent existence of its own, and some day a genius would arise and transmute jazz into pure music, not by a self-conscious use of dissonance and atonality but inspired by a compelling inner urge to express himself in that particular medium and no other.

Is it yet too early to detect the foreshadowing of such a genius in young Constant Lambert's "Rio Grande," with its compelling rhythms, essentially and inextricably woven into the texture of the whole complementary and not antagonistic to its phases of poignant, heart-searching beauty? Here true originality of mind, treating the jazz idiom with sincerity, scorning the artificialities of cheap satire and self-conscious cleverness, has transformed a somewhat shop-soiled rhythmic form into a new and vital force. Here, in short, is an eloquent expression of modern emotion and modern thought created in a musical idiom inseparable from every-day modern life—the apotheosis of jazz, the representative music of to-day.

BOY CHAPLIN'S HUMAN TOUCH.

Offered His Father a Penny.

SECRET OF SUCCESS.

A happy little story of Charlie Chaplin is told by the author of nearly 2,000 songs, Mr. George Stevens, who intends this Summer to try to bring back into favour the ditties with a 100 per cent. British theme. The centre of his operations will be Southend.

Mr. Stevens, who lives in Houlton Road, Southend, has been writing songs since he was a "printer's devil." He is now 56. "Since the American invasion British song-writers have had a rough passage, so now I am embarking along the perilous paths of concert party promotion," he said. "The Southend crowds in Summer time are just the type to appreciate songs of the old music-hall style—songs that go with a swing."

Hard-Up Days.

George was a friend of most of the old-time stars, and he recalls Charlie Chaplin's father living in Kennington Road. "Charles Chaplin, sen., was like me, invariably 'broke,' and we frequently went about together. I remember one occasion when young Charlie offered his father a penny. The father had said, 'Well, George, we shall have to get money from somewhere.'"

"Young Charlie even then was chock full of the 'human touch,' and that no doubt is one of the secrets of his tremendous success."

It was while watching Londoners on the beach at Southend that George Stevens was inspired to write the song made popular by Mark Sheridan, "You can do a lot of things at the seaside that you can't do in town." Gertie Gitman sang his "When the harvest moon is shining," and in a few weeks Randolph Sutton will be singing, "What's the matter, Able?"—another Stevens' song—to New York audiences.

The Invisible Barrier.

Many men and women suffer from offensive breath without themselves being the least bit aware of the fact. But other people are unpleasantly aware of it and are naturally repelled. Of course, doctors know that this condition has nothing to do with personal cleanliness but that its cause lies in the unhealthy and congested condition of the food tract.

If you find on rising that your tongue is furred or discoloured, or that there is an unpleasant taste in the mouth, it is likely that the breath is also odorous. Of course, none would dare to tell you, so it behoves you to watch for the signs yourself and then take steps to put matters right. For this condition there is nothing which will act so quickly and thoroughly as Pinkettes, the dainty little liver and laxative pills that cleanse the stomach, purify the breath, tone up the liver and intestines. Pinkettes ensure complete intestinal elimination, prevent accumulation and congestion. For biliousness, constipation, sick headaches, indigestion, blotchy complexion and stomach and bowel troubles generally Pinkettes, the non-gripping, non-habit-creating natural aperient offers speedy relief. All chemists can supply you.

VOLUNTEER CORPS INSPECTION.

All Round Improvement Reported.
A LONG SERVICE MEDAL.

"It is my considered belief that there has been an all round improvement in the H.K.V.D.C. since I first took over command in Hong Kong," commented His Excellency Major-General J. W. Sandilands when speaking to the Corps at yesterday's annual inspection. The turn out, which took place on Murray Parade Ground, before a large crowd of spectators, was indeed the most successful in the annals of the Volunteers. Prior to the March Past, Major-General Sandilands pinned the medal for Long Service and Good Conduct on C. S. M. Everest, of the Engineer Co. The Machine Gun Co. presented the smartest turn out, both in numbers and appearance. The units present were:-

The Engineer Company (Capt. M. Johnson, M.M.), Battery (Second-Lieut. De Ville), Corps Signals (Lieut. J. H. Bottomley), Machine Gun Troop (Lieut. A. H. Potts), Armoured Car Company (Lieut. H. G. Williams), Scottish Company (Capt. H. R. Forsyth), Machine Gun Company (Capt. E. J. R. Mitchell), Portuguese Company (Capt. R. Davies), and Medical section (Dr. E. P. Minetti).

Other officers were, the Commandant, Lieut.-Col. L. G. Bird, D.S.O., O.B.E., Major H. B. L. Dowbiggin and the Adjutant, Capt. W. H. G. Gater. Accompanying the General were Col. S. R. V. Saville, D.S.O., O.B.E., Col. R. E. Cousins, D.S.O., and Mr. Baskerville Glegg (A.D.C.).

The Corps Band was in attendance supplemented by drums and pipes from the Scottish Co.

SOVIET PIECEGOODS IN PENANG.

Anti-Dumping Law. Asked For. END OF IMPORTATION?

Russian piecegoods, exclusively prints, it is understood, are being imported into Singapore and Penang, by a well-known European firm of merchants (writes a Free Press representative as the result of enquiries in the local market).

A director of the firm said the position was more or less as in Java but he expected they had seen the end of the importation as they had found that even Russian piecegoods could not compete with the Japanese product. His company started the importation of Russian piecegoods (prints alone) about six months ago.

It was pointed out that Europe had been unable to compete with Japan since 1929.

The goods were not marked, it was true, but then neither were similar European goods but of course the origin of the goods had to be declared upon being imported into the Colony.

The company concerned have also a branch in Bangkok and a director of the company is related to a director of the Dutch company importing Russian piecegoods into Java.

Origin Disguised.

It will be remembered, a member of the Government of the Dutch East Indies, alleged that Russian piecegoods were being imported into that territory via Hamburg by one of the oldest firms in Batavia and via China by Chinese firms.

The origin of the goods had, it was at first stated, been cleverly disguised as Germany or China. He asked for a thorough investigation to find out whether there were possibly any other Soviet products being imported.

Soviet goods, he alleged, were produced by a form of slavery. They were offered at dumping prices which tended to disorganise the economic structure of the Dutch East Indies.

If the investigations confirmed the allegations Government were asked to follow the example of, among other countries, the United States and Canada, and take the necessary anti-dumping measures.

If it were impossible in view of Holland's policy that Soviet goods could be freely imported, would Government give the widest publicity to the names of the importers, asked the questioner?

Subsequently it was declared that the importation was proceeding openly with the knowledge of Government. Furthermore their prices were not lower than similar Japanese and European products, while all goods are marked with the country of origin.

the case and the evidence his Lordship remarked: "It is to be observed that no plea of insanity was raised at the trial until the concluding stage when it was suggested by counsel that his client was of unsound mind."

"In these circumstances it is futile to contend that it was the duty of a Sessions Judge to try the preliminary issue regarding the sanity of the accused and his incapacity to defend the case, especially when there was no indication that he was suffering from unsoundness of mind."

"Nor do I see any force in the argument that the accused was insane at the time of the commission of the crime. It must be remembered that it is not every person mentally diseased who is exempted from criminal responsibility."
